Acquisition of Books and Other Materials:
Books are purchased based on faculty recommendations to meet departmental needs. The library committee finalizes the purchases with the Principal's approval, adhering to the terms and conditions of publishers. Subscriptions to journals and e-journals are obtained through NLIST and other publishing houses.

College Library

The Library of Indira Gandhi National College plays a pivotal role in supporting the teaching and learning programs of the college. It is not merely a repository of books but an active hub fostering creativity and innovation. Fully automated, electronic, and Wi-Fi-enabled, the library has been utilizing KOHA version 22.05.05.000 since 2012 for library automation.

This extensive library supports the academic community with a diverse collection of textbooks, reference books, general books, and periodicals. It houses approximately 20,180 books, 25 periodicals, e-journals, e-books, and other digital resources. The library regularly updates its collection, including books on personality development, general knowledge, handbooks, and rare reference materials.

The tastefully furnished reading halls can accommodate up to 100 students at a time and are equipped with study carrels. In addition to printed materials, the library provides CDs and DVDs based on prescribed texts and other audio-visual resources.

A unique feature of the library is its E-Resource Center, offering access to over 6,000 online journals and around 200,000 electronic books through the UGC's NLIST program. This enables faculty and students to benefit from extensive e-resources for research and study purposes.

The library is also a member of the National Digital Library (NDL), providing access to over 80 million digital documents across various disciplines. These resources are freely accessible at the E-Resource Center in the library.

Dr. Rupesh Gaur, the librarian, actively encourages students to become NDL members. Open Access Resources and OPAC are available to all members through the library website www.library.igncollege.ac.in. Students can borrow books for home reading directly from the Circulation Desk. The library also provides photocopying services to its users.
